Our RLS is about how the meat consumption is causing the Amazon forest fires. Meat consumption is much to be blamed as the farmers are burning the land for pastureland for livestock and agriculture which used to be rainforest also other stakeholders involved.

State your central knowledge question (this must be expressed as a question):

On what basis do we decide what is right or wrong?

Explain the connection between your real-life situation and your knowledge question:

There are different stakeholders in the issue and their actions are different. They justified why their actions are right and other's actions are right or wrong due to their different views and perspectives. I wonder how they decide what is right or wrong and made me question the basis of their actions.
